TOPICAL, ETHNIC, AND GEOGRAPHIC INDEX OF SESSIONS

The following indexes scientific sessions by general topic, including ethnic groups and especially geographic regions where groups are located. It is not an index of individual papers, but a guide to sessions treating these topics. It should also be noted that this index is largely compiled from key-words supplied by authors; this accounts for some inconsistencies in coverage.

“A POWERFUL AND TRAGIC EXPOSE OF CHILD ABUSE AS AN EPIDEMIC OF THE MODERN WORLD.”

— Carol B. Stack

Director, Family Policy Ctr., Duke University

CHILD SURVIVAL

Anthropological Perspectives on the Treatment and Maltreatment of Children

by Nancy Scheper-Hughes, University of California at Berkeley

UNESCO has proclaimed a child survival revolution in the Third World under the World Health Organization's campaign to achieve "Health For All By The Year 2000." Yet the mechanisms proposed to bring about this revolution — family planning, promotion of breastfeeding, and oral rehydration therapy, — leave untouched the most potent pathogens of childhood: poverty, food shortages, contaminated water, crowded living conditions, unchecked infectious disease, and grossly inadequate medical care. Meanwhile, in the industrialized world, an emerging new risk to child health and well-being has appeared in the phenomenon of an "epidemic" of child abuse and neglect. This volume, drawing together contributions and case studies from leading anthropologists working in various parts of the world, represents an attempt to situate reproduction and fertility decision making, child treatment/maltreatment and child survival within its broadest possible framework.

FROM WORKING DAUGHTERS TO WORKING MOTHERS

Immigrant Women in a New England Industrial Community
By LOUISE LAMPHERE. Lamphere sets women's work within the changing political economy of Central Falls, Rhode Island from 1790, when the first textile mill opened nearby, to the late 1970s. She focuses on the shift in the paid female labor force from one of young unmarried women in the early 1900s to one dominated by working mothers in 1977. Illustrated. $14.95 paper; $45.00 cloth

WOMEN'S WORK AND CHICANO FAMILIES Cannery Workers of the Santa Clara Valley

By PATRICIA ZAVELLA. Drawing on feminist theory and revisionist social theories of Chicano family structure, Zavella paints a compelling portrait of the Chicanas who work in northern California's fruit and vegetable canneries, and explores the links between Chicano family life and gender inequity in the labor market. $10.95 paper; $35.00 cloth

CHINESE WORKING-CLASS LIVES

Getting By in Taiwan

By HILL GATES. The lives of Taiwan's working class have been shaped by Chinese tradition, by colonialism, and by rapid industrialization. This illuminating book defines that class, explores its history, and presents with sensitivity and honesty the lives of some of its members. $10.95 paper; $37.50 cloth

FARM WORK AND FIELDWORK

American Agriculture in Anthropological Perspective

Edited by MICHAEL CHIBNIK. This unique collection of ten essays on farm life in the United States examines how increasingly capital-intensive agriculture, fluctuating land and commodity prices, and rural depopulation are affecting household economics, personal relationships, and social institutions in particular rural communities. Illustrated. $12.95 paper; $39.95 cloth

PRAYING FOR JUSTICE

Faith, Order, and Community in an American Town

By CAROL J. GREENHOUSE. The author presents an ethnographic study of "Hopewell," Georgia, a predominantly white, Southern Baptist suburb whose social structure is based on a complex set of injunctions against conflict. $24.95

RENUNCIATION AND REFORMULATION

A Study of Conversion in an American Sect

By HARRIET WHITEHEAD. "Extraordinarily original and insightful."—Clifford Geertz, The Institute for Advanced Study. # Planning

Rethinking Ciudad Guayana

Lisa Peattie

Ciudad Guayana was an exciting project: a new, modern industrial city on a dramatic natural site in Venezuela's frontier region. A large interdisciplinary team of experts, backed by both money and power, did the planning. But the city that resulted is uncomfortable, inefficient, and so sharply divided between rich and poor that most people think of it as two cities.

"... a rare and vivid insider's account of development planning. Writing as the planning team's anthropologist, Lisa Peattie shows us with remarkable clarity seriously competing views of planning, tensions between economists and designers working on the same project, conflicts between central office and field, and the ways that political, economic, and cultural forces can be interwoven in planning practice."

— John Forester,
Cornell University

"... a reflection on planning and development, at the crossroads of anthropology and political philosophy... an outstanding analytical journey."

— Manuel Castells,
University of California at Berkeley

plus Supplement 9,
Yearbook of Physical Anthropology, Volume 31

The Most Frequently Cited Journal in the Field!

Over the long history of its publication, the American Journal of Physical Anthropology has established itself as the preeminent journal in anthropology. Used more times by more scientists, the Journal is the recognized source of vital information shaping the future of anthropological research. In fact, for years, the Journal, and the Yearbook—published as a supplement to the Journal—have led the field in number of citations per article published. In 1985, more researchers turned to the American Journal of Physical Anthropology as the definitive source and standard for excellence in anthropology.

The American Journal of Physical Anthropology publishes original and significant articles of human evolution and variation—past and present—including primate morphology, physiology, genetics, adaptation, growth, development, and behavior. Manuscripts for consideration should be sent to: Dr. William Stini • Department of Physical Anthropology • University of Arizona • Tucson, AZ 85721

Anthropology is a dynamic field, filled with new research developments and exciting discoveries. And it's important that the textbook you use keeps up with the most current findings.

At Harper & Row, we give your students an accurate, thorough, and completely up-to-date understanding of anthropology by offering the finest texts available. In 1987 we brought you the second edition of Cultural Anthropology by best-selling author Marvin Harris, and in 1988 we're continuing our commitment to excellence by bringing you the fifth edition of Harris' Culture, People, Nature: An Introduction to General Anthropology.

Stop by booth 115 to find out more about these and our other outstanding texts.

Business and Industrial Anthropology: An Overview
Marietta L. Baba

The second in the NAPA Bulletin series of occasional publications, Business and Industrial Anthropology: An Overview, reviews some of the research, professional service, and educational connections between anthropology and the private sector. The information presented was drawn from the existing literature, from the author's personal experience, and from a score of semi-structured interviews and correspondence with NAPA members involved in private sector research and practice. The overview is intended as an introduction to the field of business and industrial anthropology—for students who might be interested in pursuing private sector careers, for colleagues who are considering new avenues of professional development, and for other individuals who may wish to learn more about the modern applications of anthropological knowledge.

Also included are commentaries by Walter J. Dickie, Jo Rainie Rodgers, John F. Sherry, Jr., and Richard W. Stoffle.

$4.50 each for members, $6.00 for all others

HANDBOOK ON ETHICAL ISSUES IN ANTHROPOLOGY

Special Publication 23

edited by Joan Cassell
and Sue-Ellen Jacobs

To improve the ethical adequacy of anthropological practice, anthropologists must consider not only exceptional cases but everyday decisions, and reflect not only upon the conduct of others but also upon their own actions as researchers, teachers, students, and practitioners. Case studies offer a way to both heighten sensitivity and improve anthropological practice. Reading and thinking about situations faced by other anthropologists can help us to recognize our own ethical dilemmas and to make sensitive and informed decisions for resolving complex situations.

Handbook on Ethical Issues in Anthropology was designed to help social science faculty stimulate discussion and reflection on ethical issues in their courses—discussions that are an essential part of the teaching of anthropological theory and methods. Chapters in this valuable teaching aid include:

- ~ an essay on issues and sources on ethics in anthropology by Murray L. Wax
- ~ the background to the formation of the Committee on Ethics and the writing of the AAA's Principles of Professional Responsibility (PPR) by James N. Hill (PPR is included in the Appendix)
- ~ a series of case studies compiled by Joan Cassell and Sue-Ellen Jacobs, presenting ethical dilemmas with anthropologists' solutions and additional commentary
- ~ a description by Jacobs of how she used the Principles of Professional Responsibility and other materials to introduce issues of ethical responsibility in courses
- ~ guidelines by Cassell on how to hold a workshop on ethical problems in fieldwork
