AMERICAN ANTHROPOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION

PROGRAM
OF THE
83RD ANNUAL MEETING

DENVER, CO/NOVEMBER 14-18, 1984

The annual meeting of the American Anthropological Association provides a forum for the dissemination of knowledge and discussion. The views expressed at the sessions are solely those of the speakers and the Association does not endorse, approve, or censor them. Descriptions of events and titles are those of the organizers, not the Association.

TRAINING MANUAL IN DEVELOPMENT ANTHROPOLOGY

The first in a series of training manuals in applied anthropology, published by the American Anthropological Association and the Society for Applied Anthropology.

William L Partridge, Editor

Ten years ago, development projects were designed almost exclusively by technical experts. Since 1973, major shifts in project design policy have created a growing demand for development anthropologists for short-term consultancies, long-term commitment to project implementation, and as permanent staff in development organizations, consulting firms, and government agencies.

This manual, drawing on the experiences of anthropologists who have participated in development projects, has three sections: The first examines the fit between anthropological methods, knowledge, and technical skills and the requirements of the project. The second illustrates with case studies important development principles. The third annotates some of the more important reference materials, with information for obtaining these documents.

The volume contains an introduction by William L Partridge and Dennis M Warren, and contributions by Allan Hoben, William L Partridge, T Scarlett Epstein and Akbar Ahmed, Barbara L K Pillsbury, Norman B Schwartz, David Brokensha, Scott Whiteford, Kjell I Enge, Susan Hamilton, Cynthia Woodsong, and Carol-Jean McGreevy.

HOLT ANTHROPOLOGY: ORIGIN OF THE CLASSICS

Holt's the #1 publisher in Anthropology. Here's why:

REVISED!

ANTHROPOLOGY Fourth Edition

WILLIAM A. HAVILAND, University of Vermont

This updated version of Haviland's established introductory text covers the entire range of specializations—physical anthropology, prehistoric archeology, linguistics, and socio/cultural anthropology. Improved chapter sequencing, new boxes and six new Original Studies have been added. Instructor's Manual.

REVISED!

FUNDAMENTALS OF HUMAN SEXUALITY

Fourth Edition

HERANT A. KATCHADOURIAN, MD, Stanford University

This extensively revised text provides a comprehensive introduction to the biological, behavioral and social aspects of human sexuality.

CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY Fourth Edition

WILLIAM A. HAVILAND University of Vermont

Cultural Anthropology is a thorough introduction to the principles and processes of cultural anthropology. The companion text for the award-winning telecourse FACES OF CULTURE: STUDIES IN CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY developed by Coast Community Colleges and KOCE-TV, Channel 50, Huntington Beach, California. The telecourse consists of 26 half-hour documentary style programs including 8 ethnographic studies and 18 multicultural programs.

THE EMERGENCE OF HUMANKIND

Fourth Edition

A text for any course in Anthropology that deals with human evolution, THE EMERGENCE OF HUMANKIND brings together in a single narrative major advances in finds and theory—including recent discoveries in archaeology, geology, and other disciplines that relate to the transition from ape to human.

The fourth edition has been extensively rewritten and updated completely to include: new theories about the role of women in hunting-gathering societies, language and hominid origins; new deductions about social organization from fossil studies; summary of the newest ideas on primate origins; observations about child and animal behavior; coverage of the new science of "taphonomy," and the new technology of mnemonics; as well as expanded coverage of women. Instructor's Manual.

Marvin Harris

CULTURE, PEOPLE, NATURE

An Introduction to General Anthropology, Fourth Edition

CULTURE, PEOPLE, NATURE is a proven text for the introductory course. Best-selling author Marvin Harris (AMERICA NOW; CANNIBALS AND KINGS; COWS, PIGS, WARS, AND WITCHES) has effectively integrated the four subfields of anthropology—physical anthropology, archaeology, cultural anthropology and linguistic anthropology—into the most coherent and comprehensive text available.

New features include contemporary analysis of the U.S., expanded coverage of archaeology and physical anthropology, new sections on bio-evolutionary theory, primate sociobiology, and scientific creationism. The glossary, charts, graphs, illustrations and bibliography are updated. Instructor's Manual.

Marvin Harris

CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY

Harris organizes sound theory and diverse coverage around a major theme—the global diversity of cultural beliefs and practices—and balances his cultural materialist perspective with more traditional approaches. Instructor's Manual.

To request an examination copy, write to Suite 3D, Harper & Row, 10 East 53d Street, New York, NY 10022. Please include course title, enrollment, and current text.

DAVID M. SCHNEIDER
A Critique of the Study of Kinship

"The ideas of kinship and the content of kinship are the received wisdom of today, as they have been almost from the beginnings of anthropology. This wisdom is entrenched in our thinking and in our theory; especially in our theory, which derives closely from our own cultural notions . . . These are also a very compelling set of ideas, for the doctrines seem self-evident, as well they should if they are at the same time our own cultural conceptions."

— David Schneider

In viewing kinship study as the product of a western bias, Schneider challenges its use as the universal measure of the study of social structure. Using his fieldwork in Yapese society as a background for his thesis, Schneider critiques the claims made by kinship theorists and lays bare their false assumptions. He challenges anthropologists to let societies speak for themselves without screening them through the false perceptions of kinship theory. In the end, Schneider's work is "an attempt to clear the ground of the underbrush and confusion which," he says, "have tended to anchor anthropology in certain unrewarding ways."

ROBBINS BURLING
Learning a Field Language

Learning a Field Language is a guidebook for persons faced with learning a foreign language without the assistance of dictionaries, grammar books, or classroom instruction. Designed especially for anthropologists, the book suggests priorities for learning. The ability to communicate and to understand others is more important than the perfection of pronunciation, Burling writes. He makes suggestions as to how one can set out to learn a language, even from persons with whom one shares no common language. And he reminds the reader that, while he will be frustrated with the process at first, his learning will lead him to focus "primarily on the research that brought [him] into the field."

Biological Foundations of Human Behavior

Series Editors

Melvin Konner
Emory University

Richard Wrangham
University of Michigan

Biological Foundations of Human Behavior concentrates on new concepts, techniques, and empirical tests in interdisciplinary areas including human ethology, evolution, behavioral ecology, biological psychiatry, developmental psychobiology, primatology, and the neural sciences. Predicated on the assumption that advances in biology are fundamental to an understanding of human behavior, the series highlights developments which promise to unite the biological and social sciences. Many of the studies in the series deal directly with human behavior, and animal studies are presented which are relevant to understanding human behavior. A major vehicle for new theories and techniques in human and animal behavior, the series reflects and promotes interrelationships between the biological, behavioral, and social sciences.

Fields of Concentration

MECHANISMS OF BEHAVIOR • Developmental ethology • Developmental psychobiology • Cross-cultural development • Brain and behavior in humans • Behavioral neurobiology • Behavioral endocrinology

EVOLUTION OF BEHAVIOR • Comparative ethology • Human ethology • Behavioral ecology • Human ecology • Human evolution • Archaeology and behavior • Biological anthropology

Titles in the series

THE TAPESTRY OF CULTURE:

An Introduction to Cultural Anthropology, Second Edition

Abraham Rosman and Paula Rubel,
both of Barnard College

"The chapters are written in a lucid style and the authors have done a remarkable job in blending and combining theoretical issues with a vital set of ethnographic examples."

ARAM A. YENGOYAN, UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

This concise text presents a rich, vivid introduction to the variety of cultures in our world. Past and present societies, small-scale and complex, are explored through a full range of ethnographic examples and illustrations which provide the context for basic anthropological theories and concepts and prepare students to read ethnographies with insight and understanding.

The second edition includes a new chapter on language and culture, updated material on gender roles and gender relationships, and new discussions of world systems theory, dependency theory, and neocolonialism.

Anthropological Society of Washington Series

The Smithsonian Institution Press is pleased to announce that it is now publisher of a series of significant volumes in anthropology edited by the Anthropological Society of Washington. Previous Society publications may be purchased from the Press, which will also issue new works as they are readied.

The Society, the oldest continuously functioning anthropological association in the United States, was founded in the original Smithsonian building in 1879 by, among others, John Wesley Powell. The Society founded the journal American Anthropologist. The Press is proud to renew the Smithsonian's long association with this seminal scholarly society.

IN THE BEGINNING
An Introduction to Archaeology
Fifth Edition

Brian M. Fagan

Comprehensive and jargon-free, this popular introduction to archaeological methods and theoretical approaches offers a balanced, accessible presentation enhanced by numerous illustrations, cross-cultural examples, and ample pedagogy. Revised to reflect the concerns of adopters worldwide, the fifth edition provides detailed coverage of the latest trends, including a completely rewritten chapter on cultural resource management; expanded treatment of middle range theory and how the record can be interpreted with reference to the present; and many more new and expanded topics.

ANTHROPOLOGY
Contemporary Perspectives
Fourth Edition

David E.K. Hunter and
Phillip Whitten, editors

As with previous editions of this widely used reader, the new fourth edition offers an outstanding collection of current, readable articles in each of the major topical areas of introductory anthropology. Facsimile reproductions from such sources as Scientific American and Natural History and written by the world's foremost scholars are accompanied by their original illustrations. Among the new entries in this edition are excerpts from Chagnon's well-known book on the Yanomamo and an analysis of the Margaret Mead controversy by Lowell Holmes. Extensive section introductions and a unique glossary make this equally useful as a text or supplement.

HUMANKIND EMERGING

Fourth Edition

Bernard G. Campbell

The new edition of this superbly written introductory text by internationally known author/scholar Campbell continues to capture student interest by presenting human evolution from a historical perspective. Covering everything from genetics to primate behavior with a minimum of technical jargon, he integrates both the physical and cultural evidence from paleoanthropology and the fossil record. Fully updated, the third edition features increased coverage of primates, information on recent finds and interpretations, a generous illustration program, and a wealth of pedagogical aids.

Like its predecessors, the fourth edition of this excellent text gives readers unsurpassed coverage of the major subfields of physical anthropology. An in-depth discussion of the long-term biological and behavioral trends in human evolution, Weiss and Mann's book helps students to grasp and organize complex material by consistently placing it within the context of adaptation. Highlights of this substantial revision include new discoveries about the molecular biology of the gene and cloning technology, completely updated coverage of the Neanderthal, Oligocene, and Miocene periods — and much more.

AFFLUENCE AND CULTURAL SURVIVAL

RICHARD F. SALISBURY
and ELISABETH TOOKER

RICHARD F. SALISBURY
Symposium Organizer

"Does the fact that a group is rich affect its culture? This collection of case studies explores this question . . . by examining what have been the changes in the culture of particular groups when they have suddenly become rich. What is here defined as richness, or 'affluence,' is then not any absolute degree of wealth but rather an increase in the volume of resources available to the group. . . . The question asked is whether, under such circumstances, the culture 'survives,' or is in fact changed in identifiable directions."

ETHNOGRAPHY BY ARCHAEOLOGISTS
Elisabeth Tooker, Proceedings Editor
William C. Sturtevant, Symposium Organizer

In attempting to discover "laws" of human behavior from archaeological evidence, archaeologists are raising important new problems not previously addressed in the ethnographic literature. As a result, many archaeologists have turned to doing their own ethnography in order to answer questions that have arisen within archaeology itself. This collection of papers explores the relationships between archaeology and ethnography. Issues addressed by the authors range from the use of ethnographic data in archaeological interpretations through the ethnographic study of archaeology itself and of the presentation of archaeological results.

The volume contains contributions by Bruce G. Trigger, Harold C. Conklin, Jane K. Sallade and David P. Braun, William Hampton Adams, and Russell G. Handman. (Originally presented at the Annual Meeting of the American Ethnological Society in Quebec City, March 1978.) $4.00 to AES Members, $10.00 to all others

THE DEVELOPMENT OF POLITICAL ORGANIZATION IN NATIVE NORTH AMERICA
Elisabeth Tooker, Proceedings Editor
Morton H. Fried, Symposium Organizer

This volume contains sixteen case studies of Native American political organization that range from Alabama to the Aleutian Islands and from prehistoric times to the twentieth century. The papers evaluate how successfully recent advances in social and political theory account for the data, and consider future directions further study might take.

The volume contains contributions by Robert L. Bettinger, Charles A. Bishop, Frederica de Laguna, Leland Donald, Philip Drucker, Brian Ferguson, Frank J. Findlow and Neil J. Goldberg, Eleanor Leacock, Donald H. Mitchell, Christopher S. Peebles, Fred Plog and Steadman Upham, Nan A. Rothschild, M. Estellie Smith, William C. Sturtevant, David Hurst Thomas, and Joan B. THE PROSPECTS FOR PLURAL SOCIETIES
Stuart Plattner, Proceedings Editor
David Maybury-Lewis, Symposium Organizer

The needs of the nation-state and their supposed incompatibility with the aspirations of ethnic groups within the state are the usual excuse for the forced acculturation of entire peoples, for expropriating them, otherwise discriminating against them, or ultimately, exterminating them.

The volume contains a broad range of important writings on pluralism by many of the leading specialists in the field, including David Maybury-Lewis, Leo Despres, John Murra, Roberto Cardoso de Oliveira, Norman E. Whitten, Jr., Edward Bruner, Fredrik Barth, Lin Yueh-Hwa, Akbar Ahmed, Judith Nagata, T. N. Madan, M. G. Smith, Peter Worsley, and Leo Kuper. The Ethnography of Cannibalism

Edited by Paula Brown and Donald Tuzin

What are the social and cultural contexts in which humans eat their own kind?

Traditionally a topic of horror and fascination based on the accounts of travelers, missionaries, and conquerors, cannibalism has only recently received serious anthropological attention. This volume of ethnographic essays gives startling insight into the facts and fantasies surrounding cannibalism in a variety of societies.

Articles by Gillian Gillison and Fitz John Porter Poole show how cannibal customs are enmeshed with elements of ritual and myth in two New Guinea highland societies. Marshall Sahlins blends his empirical findings with historical documentation of cannibalism in Fiji. Carol P. MacCormack analyzes symbolic and political implications of cannibalistic accusation among the Sherbro of West Africa. Donald Tuzin examines the psycho-cultural factors influencing the response of the Arapesh of lowland New Guinea to Japanese cannibal predation during World War II. Commentary and concluding remarks are provided by Shirley Lindenbaum.

NEW FROM ILLINOIS

Sicuanga Runa

The Other Side of Development in Amazonian Ecuador

NORMAN E. WHITTEN, JR.

A remarkably detailed and profusely illustrated study with far-reaching implications for all developing nations. "In Sicuanga Runa Whitten has pioneered an important new direction in the anthropological study of native peoples."—Irving Goldman. January, $22.95.

Underdeveloping the Amazon

Extraction, Unequal Exchange, and the Failure of the Modern State

STEPHEN G. BUNKER

Three massive, conflicting forces—the Amazon jungle, the Brazilian state, and corporate enterprise—form the central configuration for Bunker's superb study of the Amazon Basin's long legacy of exploitation. "Has important implications for theory and policy that should interest students of rural development and state intervention, regardless of their interest in the Amazon itself."—Peter B. Evans. $24.50.

The Indian Man

A Biography of James Mooney

L. G. MOSES

Mooney was a member of the first generation of government ethnologists who rediscovered Native American cultures. His exceptionally lucid and detailed writings—on the Kiowas, Cheyennes, Cherokees, the Ghost Dance religion, and peyote cults—today remain standard sources on Native American history and anthropology. "A splendid book."—Robert M. Utley. $24.95.

American Bottom Archaeology

A Summary of the FAI-270 Project Contribution to the Culture History of the Mississippi River Valley

Edited by CHARLES J. BAREIS and JAMES W. PORTER

An excellent overview and key to the entire American Bottom project that also serves as a useful guide for the purchase of specific volumes in the series. (Ten of the projected 21 volumes have appeared; for further information, see the Illinois book exhibit.) "I cannot recall an publication effort on American archaeology that is as large, comprehensive, and important as this series. . . . Substantially modifies current views of Mississippi Valley and Cahokia prehistory and provides much needed data for archaeologists of the eastern United States."—James B. Griffin. Summary volume, cloth, illustrated, $22.50.

Forthcoming: Directions in Cognitive Anthropology, edited by Janet Dougherty; An Anthropology of Curing in Multiethnic Thailand, by Louis Golomb; and reissues of two more books by Zora Neale Hurston, Dust Tracks on a Road: An Autobiography, and Moses, Man of the Mountain.
